

More Termite Protection For Your Home

Did you know there is more than one type of termite that will damage your home?

- Most homes are protected against Subterranean Termites. However, they're not protected against Drywood Termites.
- This termite needs no contact with the soil
- They can swarm into your house and start their colony directly in structural wood members, wood flooring, wood trim, even in wood furniture, without requiring a soil connection
- Florida Pest Control now offers preventive and targeted liquid treatments for these destructive insects
- The alternative is to tent fumigate

- This treatment has many advantages over tent fumigating for Drywood Termites
- Treatment leaves a residual to keep Drywood Termites from starting colonies in your home
- No need to leave your home during the treatment
- No need to remove food and other items from your home
- No damage to the structure or landscape
- Substantial savings by treating preventively
